ABOUT US:

Jalco Snowguards was founded by brothers Jack and Al Kleckner in 1958. Roofers at the time Jack and Al did their fair share of installing snowguards on countless roofs. There was one thing that bothered Jack about the snowguards however. After the snowguards would be out in the weather for awhile they would begin to rust since they were made out of steel. The rust would then start to leave unappealing rust marks down the roofs. So Jack came up with idea to start making snowguards out of aluminum since it does not rust. He brought his brother Al in and they began to produce and sell snowguards all over the country for the next 55 years. Now Jack's son Jan and daughter Susan took over and are keeping the family business running.

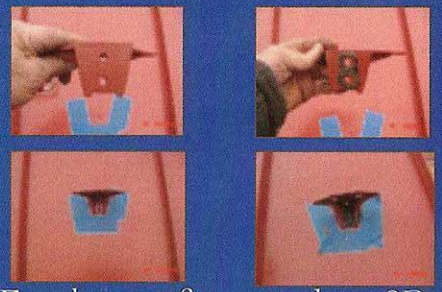
Installation Guide

- For metal roofing, use two 1 5/8" deckfast screws, for corrugated 2 1/4" and we recommend sealing with 795 Dow Corning silicone or better grade



- For slate roofing, use three 8D common nails to attach. Notch next slate for tight fit. Place 3 feet apart in a zigzag pattern

- For shingle roofing, notch at end of shingle. Place 3 feet apart in a zigzag pattern
